

Kindness Starts with Me - Levels F-3

WRITTEN

To help students learn that kindness is something everyone can do, and that small acts of kindness make a big difference to others and to ourselves.

Learning Intentions

Identify Kindness:

To notice small ways I can be kind at school and at home.

Show Kindness:

To use my words, actions, and body to be kind.

Reflect on Kindness:

To think about how kindness makes me and others feel.

Success Criteria

I can name or show one kind thing I can do today.

I can explain how my kindness helps another person.

I can share how I feel when I am kind.

Kindness Starts with Me – Levels F-3

WRITTEN

Duration: 15–20 minutes

Objective

To help students learn that kindness is something everyone can do, and that small acts of kindness make a big difference to others and to ourselves.

What You Need

- Notebooks or paper
- Pencils or Coloured pencils
- Optional: stickers or a class kindness chart

Gameplay

1. Think of a Kind Act – Students think of one kind thing they can do today (e.g., smiling at a friend, sharing pencils, helping to pack up, saying thank you).
2. Draw or Write – Students draw a picture or write a sentence about their act of kindness.
3. Reflect on Feelings – Talk about how their kindness would make the other person feel, and how being kind makes them feel too.
4. Share with Others – In pairs, small groups, or as a class, students share their ideas. This builds connection and helps them see that there are many different ways to be kind.

Reflection Prompts

- What is one kind thing you can do today?
- How will your kindness make someone else feel?
- How do you feel when you are kind?

For Wheelchair Users / Accessibility

- Kindness actions can include non-physical choices, such as giving compliments, smiling, offering words of encouragement, or offering encouragement.
- Students can share kindness ideas through drawing, speaking, pointing, or using technology.
- Make sure all children have an equal chance to contribute.

Notes for Inclusion

- Celebrate that every act of kindness matters, even the smallest.
- Give visual examples (pictures or role-play) of kindness to support students who need prompts.
- Encourage listening respectfully when others share.

Variations

- Family/Home Play: Each family member shares one kind thing they will do today and then talks about how it went at dinner.
- Classroom Variation: Create a Kindness Tree or Chart. Each time a student shows kindness, they add a leaf, sticker, or drawing.
- Group Challenge: As a class, aim to complete a set number of kind acts in a week and celebrate together when it's achieved.
