INSTRUCTIONS

Numbers, numbers, numbers is a great icebreaker connection starter activity that you can use with participants of all ages. Before you start, you will need to have a deck of playing cards and remove all picture cards. That means that you can have four different teams with the suits of the cards. Teams will be clubs, spades, diamonds and hearts. You can have one per team, right up to ten per team. If your group size is larger than 40 people, you will need to have more decks of cards. I will explain this game as if you have group sizes of six players per team.

Each team is given their cards. The ace is a one for this game. When teams have their ten cards from one to ten, they are ready to play. Use the list of values below, and teams need to create that number in order first. The team who can sort out the cards and hold them in the correct order for the number below gets the point. If you have ten players, each player has their own card that they keep for the entire time. If you don't have ten players, the cards stay in a pile, and each time a new number is called, teams work together to sort the cards and stand with them in the correct order.

Here are some sample numbers:

23769

12345678910

246810

13579

13245769108

418976

Get creative and create as many as you like. We usually play until one team has five wins, and they are the winners.
